SPRING MEDICINE,
BELL'S
SARSAPARILLA!
Don't fail to give it a trial. The whole story in a few words. From the Dexter Gazette.
BELL'S SARSAPARILLA.
If any one doubts the efficacy of this Medicine, let them read the statements from those who have given it a trial, on the first page of our paper. It is not only endorsed by strong home testimonials but leading druggists pronounce it a medicine of rare merit. Our own apothecaries who have sold this preparation since it was first introduced speak in high terms of it. The proprietor of Bell's Sarsaparilla has earned the good will of the public in one thing, in putting a first class medicine in the market, equal to the best dollar preparations at the POPULAR PRICE OF 50 cts per bottle. Fifty cents is a large sum to save to the people on a bottle of medicine of this kind but they can do it every time in buying Bell's Sarsaparilla.
Only 50 Cents per Bottle.

STATE NEWS

Androscoggin

A painful accident happened to Mr. G. A. Lindell, an overseer in the Hill mill, Lewiston, Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Lindell was caring for his horse and was just in the act of lifting his little boy to the horse's back, when with a sudden throw of his head the horse pushed Mr. Lindell over. He fell, and the horse trod his hoofs into his face. The [illegible] of the horse broke down the cheek bone, cut a large gash over the eye near the centre of the forehead and broke in the bones of the nose. Mr. Lindell rescued himself from his perilous position as quickly as possible. Fortunately the little boy was not hurt. Mr. Lindell was for nearly a minute beneath the feet of the prancing horse. Mr. Lindell is Grand Worthy Templar of Maine of the Temple of Honor.

Aroostook

Mr. Parfait Gagnon, one of Caribou's business men, died very suddenly last Tuesday. He was chatting in his barn when he was taken with a strange feeling and said that he would go into the house a little while, and in five minutes he was dead.

Cumberland

Jabez Marchant, of New Gloucester, a man eighty years of age, fell from the great beam of his barn last Thursday, a distance of sixteen feet, breaking his collar bone and otherwise badly injuring himself.

Franklin

A large quantity of shavings were found beneath the old Court House at Farmington. They were made eighty-three years ago and were in excellent condition.

Friday Mr. John Stinchfield, of Madrid, had nearly reached home from Phillips, whither he had just carried his wife and children for a visit, when he was overtaken by another team and told that his baby, a child about eighteen months old, had fallen into a well, and was just alive. It proved that the child fell about thirty feet, striking his head in the fall and making a terrible flesh wound. The child is still alive and doing well as could be expected, says the Farmington Chronicle.

Kennebec

County Commissioner Coburn is dangerously ill and it is feared he is beyond recovery.

Coroner Hibbs will hold an inquest on the death of Mr. Timothy Bragg at the request of relatives. Grave suspicions of poison are still entertained. The community are much agitated over the affair, and the general belief is that there has been foul play. Several occurrences since Saturday night have furnished strong reasons for suspicion that at first.

The absent mindedness of a certain Augusta physician is almost proverbial. The other day he took passage on a Maine Central train from Portland to Augusta. On arriving at Brunswick he stepped from the car into the restaurant after a cup of tea. On returning he entered the same car, as he supposed, that he had left, but really got into a Portland car. After the train had departed from the station and got well under way, the conductor came along and took up the Doctor's ticket. Examining it for a moment he exclaimed "Why, where are you going? This train runs to Portland." The medical man was dumfounded and stepped off at the first station, taking the next train for home after an exasperating wait.

Knox

Hon. S. D. Burr, of Harrisburg, Pa., is in Rockland, awaiting a car load of furniture for his summer cottage at Seal Harbor, Mt. Desert. Mr. B. is a representative in Congress from his State.

The Camden and Rockland Water Company perfected its organization Tuesday under the charter granted by last winter's Legislature. The Courier-Gazette says it is proposed to take a supply of pure water from Oyster River Pond in the town of Camden, and deliver it through a ten inch iron pipe, to a reservoir located on Juniper Hill about 25,000 feet distant from the above source. From this reservoir is a second source of supply. It is proposed to bring the water through a twelve-inch iron pipe to the junction of North Main and Maverick streets, and distribute it through the city.

Lincoln

Michael Maloney's house at Newcastle was burned Thursday. Loss about $600. Insured for $300. Cause, a defective flue.

Sagadahoc

William Mitchell, of West Bath, employed in the upper mill of the New England Ship Building Company, was caught in a planing machine, Wednesday morning, and had his left foot cut, causing an ugly wound on the instep.

Waldo

Emery Boardman, Esq., Judge of the Belfast Police Court, has been ill for a week, but is recovering. During his sickness the criminal matters, as provided by law, were disposed of by Justice Greer.

A telegram announces the death on April 9th, at Concordia, Kansas, of Mr. Isaac Twombly, who formerly resided in Monroe and Frankfort, but who for several years past has lived at the West.

Searsport is said to be excited over strange sounds, like the crashing of large quantities of broken glass, which are heard in the vestry of one of the churches. Several people have heard the noise but cannot account for them.

The Belfast Age says Mr. Newell Staple, of Searsport, was hurt severely, if not fatally, last Saturday, on the steamboat wharf. His horses became unmanageable, and he jumped from the carriage, thereby entangling himself in the reins, but in so doing his head came in contact with one of the piles, and the coach passed over and broke one of his legs. He was taken up insensible.

Mr. Ephraim Pitcher, of Belfast, brought into the city, one day last week, a quantity of cider which he had just made from apples which had been frozen through the winter. It was as clear as if it had been refined, and Mr. Pitcher said that it would keep all through the coming summer without change. The apples were thawed by the application of warmth when they became soft, and then the juice was expressed; one bushel making four gallons of cider. Mr. Pitcher gave some information as to the newly discovered method of keeping apples in freezing. They must remain undisturbed in the barrel or bin and the frost withdrawn very slowly. Thus treated they are as hard and crisp as before frozen, and they will keep till another crop comes off. If this is so it is a very important discovery.

Washington

The fine residence of F. M. Hopkins, at Mill Bridge, with its costly furnishings, was burned Monday night. Loss, $12,000; partly insured in the Etna.

York

The Saco river is free from ice at Steep Falls, it having gone out Wednesday, two weeks later than last year. No damage was caused.

The dwelling house of W. Edson Hill, of Wells village, was burned Thursday morning, at five o'clock. The fire caught from the chimney. Loss, $1,200, insured for $700. The contents were saved.

The wife of Oscar E. Blaney died in Kittery, Monday after a short illness, reports the Biddeford Times. Blaney is in prison at Thomaston under sentence of death for the murder of Thomas Burrows at Kittery.

SUNNY SOUTH

An Interesting Trip

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13, 1885.
Editor of the Whig and Courier:

We have just arrived here upon our return from a winter's stay in Florida. And this is certainly a city of no mean account, for it can truly boast that it has the finest Capitol Building in the world and that it is the Capital of the best government and country under the sun.

We came from Jacksonville to Macon, Ga., something less than three hundred miles, a flat uninteresting country, but with abundant hard pine forest and steam mills every few miles to manufacture it, and about the only houses on the way were those that clustered about the mill.

But at Macon we found a fine old town of about the size of Bangor, though apparently of less business. The streets are wide, the residences many of them, elegant. It has a fine park and race course, and buildings for cattle shows and fairs, connected with it. The city has been liberal and enlightened as well in its endowment of religious and educational institutions. As I rode around in the day of my stay a large building was pointed out as a school for Catholic boys, and another for Catholic girls, and [illegible] is Pio Nono College. And then college, and many school houses and steeples of churches upon the right and left and ahead of us, attested the reverence for religion, and the regard for learning that had wisely inspired the action of this southern city and however much education may have been neglected elsewhere in the South, certainly it is not at Macon.

From Macon to Atlanta, the country is better, the hard pine ceases and farms that grow some cotton and corn, no grass, but with small peach orchards now in bloom, take the place of the hard pine and saw mills lower down.

Atlanta is a place of push and rush, of boom and brag. It claims some 60,000 inhabitants and may have half or two-thirds that number, and it claims that it sold $100,000,000 of goods last year and undoubtedly it is a large distributing point for the South, and is a healthy location but everything is rough and unfinished. Its said to be [illegible] that they haven't had time to finish, and the servants in it haven't time to wait upon you. Indeed it is doubtful whether the landlord runs the hotel or the hotel runs him. There are, however, many fine private residences, and by-and-by, upon the completion of the State Capitol now building there and the expenditures that will follow, the city will no doubt become more inviting to visitors.

From Atlanta to Chattanooga the country is rather poor and [illegible] but little thrift. Grass, however, begins to grow and apple trees appear, and cows put on some flesh instead of standing about as skeletons with a skin pulled over them to cover their bones.

Chattanooga is a place of commercial importance and of large industries in iron and coal, but its charm to tourists is in its historic Lookout Mountain and the battlefields of the war, in its neighborhood. Lookout Mountain is 2,8[illegible] feet above the sea and 1,8[illegible] above the city, and from its top you look down almost perpendicularly upon the silver thread of the Tennessee, and the wide valley of green and foliage and dwellings, through which it winds its serpentine way. And it was at the base of this mountain on Nov. 24, 1863, the Confederate forces under Bragg being entrenched upon its heights and at its [illegible] the "battle of the clouds" was fought, Hooker gallantly attacking from the plateau below.

As you stand upon the projecting ledge, raise your eyes and the battle fields of Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge stand out in clear relief before you, then turn round and the sweep of your vision takes in four States. From the traditions of the neighborhood I am inclined to think these three battles were among the severest of the war.

From Lookout Mountain we drove to the National Cemetery. The cemetery is circular, nearly a mile in circumference and contains seventy-five and one-half acres, enclosed by a well hewn and cemented stone wall, with a smooth driveway all around inside some feet from the wall. The gate way arch of Alabama lime-stone, in design and sculpture is chaste and as beautiful, I think, as any triumphal arch, European capitols can boast of. Upon its outward entablature is inscribed

"NATIONAL CEMETERY,
Chattanooga, A. D. 1863."

Upon the inner:

"Here rest in peace 12,956 citizens
Who died for their country
In the years 1861 to 1865."

The graves are in sections, as if in marching order, with white head stones. Those who were known are in one portion of the grounds with their names and State upon their head stones. Those who were not known have simply "unknown" upon their head stones. Among the known was one only from Maine. There were several tablets of wood with white letters, of general memorial, upon them, perishable of course, but tender and affectionate. Two of them I copied, as striking me at the moment as being fit and appropriate. One was

"The muffled drum's sad roll has beat
The soldier's last tattoo,
No more on life's parade shall meet
That brave and fallen few."

The other was:

"On Fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread
And glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of their dead."

But no words of personal eulogy mark their graves, and none are needed. For the flag that floats over them attests to the world the patriotism of the men who laid down their lives in its defence. And as day by day, forever, it unfolds its stars in morning greeting upon the known, and "unknown" as well it will forever keep fresh in the memories of men the virtues and patriotism of the brave who sleep beneath it.

Up through east Tennessee and through the valley of the James river to the Natural Bridge in Virginia, the country is better than below, but the hotels worse. The railroad restaurants are villainous, and enough to affect seriously the travel upon this route to the South.

We stopped off a day to visit the Natural Bridge, that is situate two and a half miles from the station. The bridge spans a deep creek or small stream that flows into James river. The country round about is hilly, even mountainous, and the Blue Ridge is all in sight to the east. The bridge is travelled over as a carriage way, but in riding over it one does not see the cavernous depths below. But viewed from the deep down bed of the stream the bridge is grand and imposing. It has only a single arch and is all open between the buttresses on either side that lift it up 215 feet high in the air. It is a single block of limestone, of many shades of color, wide enough to span Main street, and high enough for any of our church steeples, I suppose, to stand under its arch. The story of its building has never been told. It was not made with hands.

It is claimed that a tract of 157 acres granted Thomas Jefferson by George the Third, by deed of July, 1774. Jefferson lived awhile on the premises and the foundation walls of his house still remain. And Washington, when a surveyor for Lord Fairfax in this neighborhood, chiselled his name upon the south wall of the bridge, the letters "G. W." only now remaining and that much crumbled. Little did this young surveyor think that he was carving a name that would live in the memory of men as long as the arch of stone over it should last or the Blue Ridge the habitation of Virginians, always so dear to him, a landmark of beauty to the Old Dominion.

We then passed on through the valley of the James and the Shenandoah, a charming blending of valley and farm and mountain, and I did think nature must have had new brush and fresh paint when she gave beauty and color and loveliness to this valley of the Shenandoah, but the brushes were worn out and the paint gone, when the [illegible] coast of the Carolinas and Georgia were to be painted, and so these were left, the wastes of barren sands with scattering hard pine in place to conceal their sterility.

I would say a word about the wonderful Luray Caves but I've written too much already.

S. H. B.

Trotters and Pacers

Some very interesting facts in regard to the fast trotting and pacing horses of this country is contained in the following from the Chicago Horseman: There are 1,015 trotters with records of 2:30 or better; 602 of which have records of 2:25 or better; 129 with records of 2:20 or better; 12 with records of 2:15 or better, and two with records of 2:10 or better. Of the horses in the 2:30 list 874 are geldings, [illegible] mares and 371 stallions. Of these 387 are bays, 310 chestnuts, 187 browns, 1[illegible] blacks, 105 grays, 15 roans, 10 whites, 20 duns, 1 spotted, 1 blue, and 1 unknown color. There are 384 pacing horses with records of 2:30 or better, 179 in 2:25 or better, 36 in 2:20 or better; 10 in 2:17 or better, and one in 2:10 or better. The sex is 251 geldings, 102 mares and 27 stallions. In color, there are 162 chestnuts, 71 grays, [illegible] black 32, browns 2[illegible], roans 20, duns 8, spotted 1, and 11 of an unknown color. There were 231 trotters to enter the 2:30 list in 1884 making records of 2:25 or better [illegible] 111 horses lowered their records in 1884, 78 trotting in 2:25 or better, 29 in 2:20 or better, [illegible] in 2:15 or better, and 2 in 2:10 or better. Fifty-eight pacers dropped into the thirty list in 1884, 28 went into 2:25 or better, 8 in 2:20 or better and 1 in 2:15 or better. Eight pacers lowered former records in 1884, 14 going in 2:25 or better, 10 in 2:20 or better, 3 in 2:15 or better, and 1 (Johnston 2:06¼) in 2:10 or better. Thirteen four-year-old trotters went in 2:30 or better, before the public, while [illegible] of them made records of 2:25 or better, and 2 better than 2:20. Three three-year-olds made records of 2:30 or better, but none below than 2:2[illegible].

After reviewing the above I find that out of a combined total of 1,880 pacers we have records of 2:15 and better, and only 12 trotters out of 1,015. From this it is evident that the pace is the fastest gait. In color we find that the bays predominate in both pacer and trotter, chestnuts taking second place, while with the pacers the grays and off colors are more numerous in proportion to the number of horses. In sex, the geldings are largely in the lead, with the stallions in the minority. 1884 will long be remembered as a year of record smashing, and it will also go down in history as the first year in which two four-year-olds made records better than 2:20, namely — Sallie Benton, 2:17¾ (the best for the age), and Elvira 2:18.

Gum Arabic

THE SOUDAN WAR AND THE CANDY MARKET —THREE MILLION POUNDS USED ANNUALLY IN CONFECTIONERY.

Few people who read of the war in the Soudan consider that it is of any personal interest to Americans. This is not so, however. Every family is more or less interested however. Every young man who treats his best girl to French bonbons is interested, and the best girl should be particularly interested, for El Mahdi's operations have cut off the supply of gum arabic. One's mind naturally reverts when thinking of gum arabic to the backs of postage stamps and the sticky edge of the envelope flaps or to the paste pot of country editors. These are of minor importance, however. The envelope under a heavy stress might employ some other sticking matter, a substitute might be found for the use of postage stamps, and the country papers would continue their editions of uncredited clippings by a substitution of paste made of flour.

For candy, if it is made as candy should be made, no substitute can be found, though glucose is used to an extent that would alarm people who wish their children's digestion to remain perfect. Two years ago gum arabic was selling at from six to eight cents per pound, to-day it brings from twenty-five to thirty cents, and a really fine article costs fifty cents a pound. There are speculators who believe that it will go still higher and are buying it in large quantities to hold it for a rise. The consumption of the article in the United States amounts to about 4,000,000 pounds annually, of which 3,000,000 is used in making candy. It is used largely, also, in the coloring of the best print goods. Prior to the war in Egypt the supply was greater than the demand and there was a large surplus on hand which has not yet been exhausted.

The gum comes from the country now in possession of the Mahdi. In 1883 only about one-fifth of the usual crop was gathered, and nothing is known as to the extent of the crop of 1884. One year is required to transport it from the country where it is gathered to Cairo and Alexandria, and even if a cessation of hostilities in the Soudan should immediately take place, no new stock could be relied upon for many months. A gum which is similar to the arabic, called gum senegal, is gathered on the west coast of Africa. It is coarser and somewhat stronger but has found favor as a substitute. For many years it has been a potent factor in keeping down the price of the better known gum. Formerly it was not extensively used, but as prices have gone up the field has been better worked and dealers in it now hope the increase of the one may offset the decrease of the other. The higher the price goes the smaller is the demand. Candy makers who would have scorned the use of glucose when gum arabic was 8 or 10c. a pound now use it almost entirely. Dealers in gum arabic are not in a hopeful mood; they say that even if the supply should again come in a considerable reduction in price it would take some time to bring back the custom they have lost. They say they know from experience, some years ago when the market price of gum caused manufacturers to use glucose for a substitute, it was used until the gum reached its lowest price. Most of the trading in gum arabic to-day is by speculators. As it is now, innocent children, candy makers and gum dealers will hardly be [illegible] till the false prophet blessed.

OVER AND OVER AGAIN.

It is by repetition that the only way to impress a truth upon the mind. Accordingly, we take the [illegible] Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" (the original Little Pills) continue to be wonderfully effective in cases of sick and nervous headache, constipation, indigestion, rush of blood to the head, cold extremities and all ailments arising from obstruction of the bodily functions. Their action is thorough yet gentle, and the ingredients being entirely vegetable they can be taken with impunity into the most delicate stomach. All druggists.

A MAN'S THANKS.

A well known business man of Wilmington, N. C., writes to express his thanks for the benefit which his wife has derived from the use of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. "It is with pleasure," he says, "that I write to express to you my gratitude for the relief and benefit your Vegetable Compound has been to my wife, who has been troubled with ulceration and a tumor weighing 2½ lbs., so the doctor said. She has been under the treatment of the doctor for six years. Finally he said he could do nothing more for her, that she would die in 24 hours. Then I commenced using your Compound, as soon as she commenced to take it she commenced getting better and now she can attend to her domestic affairs as well as she ever could."

The effects after taking Adamson's Botanic Balsam are a soothing and controlling influence over any cough or cold, promoting rest, allaying the tickling sensation in the throat and causing a healthy expectoration.

SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 1885.

The President seems to be in some doubt whether or not Garland is a bigger man than the Constitution.

It appears that Dunton, the postmaster at Centre [illegible]ville, who was arrested on a charge of defrauding the government, is a Democrat.

It is understood at Washington that the President has left the matter of the New [illegible] appointments in the hands of [illegible] Manning. He is an excellent man to manage the machine so as to [illegible] the party in the election this fall.

[illegible] to flourish in [illegible] the Democratic vote and the Democratic officers [illegible] growing constantly smaller. Denver, at the recent city election showed a larger Republican majority than it gave last November.

[illegible] though the Republicans carried Cincinnati by a good majority, notwithstanding [illegible] repeaters, the [illegible] of that city [illegible] that every evidence of fraud at the [illegible] by the Democrats be investigated and prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The Postmaster General finds his force [illegible] to keep [illegible] the discharge of the [illegible] of his department. At the rate the [illegible] is progressing now it is estimated it will take two years to fill the existing vacancies in the minor offices. This [illegible] discouraging news to the [illegible] democracy.

[illegible] its Mayoralty election and the evidence [illegible] given of the impossibility of preventing fraud with the present safeguards around the ballot box, the demand [illegible] the Legislature give the city a new more stringent registration law is [illegible] than ever in Chicago.

[illegible] referring to the charge of Allen O. Myers that he was offered $500 and then [illegible] to vote for Mr Pendleton in the senatorial contest in Ohio, the Courier [illegible] a paragraph denouncing Myers as a disreputable character. Myers is and [illegible] been a prominent and widely quoted Democrat, being a [illegible] personage than [illegible] "Blakeley" [illegible] leading correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

[illegible] dissatisfaction [illegible] Bayard's [illegible] to be spreading. The [illegible] News (Dem) says: "There are a number of [illegible] Democrats in this country that haven't yet been provided with [illegible] and some uneasiness is felt they should not go round. [illegible] Cleveland Democrats will stand [illegible] [illegible] loitering abroad at [illegible] country's expense for a period."

[illegible] that Assistant Postmaster General Hay [illegible] ill detained at Florida on account of ill health. [illegible] Republican official was able to perform his duties for [illegible] on how quickly he would be informed [illegible] this reform Administration that it was necessary in the interest of the efficient [illegible] of the work in his department [illegible] should [illegible] [illegible] some one [illegible] could give his personal attention to [illegible].

[illegible] we publish the [illegible] report of the execution of the two murderers Santore and Capone, at [illegible] State Prison. So much it seems necessary to do as a matter of custom in chronicling the vindication of the laws, but we [illegible] publishing any of the [illegible] of the terrible [illegible] which the [illegible] we earnestly deprecate the tendency of [illegible] papers to bid for street sales by filling [illegible] after column with matter that [illegible] [illegible] most depraved appetite for the [illegible] and that cannot fail to exert a [illegible] influence upon public morals.

[illegible] of the Treasury Manning succeeded in getting the Democratic machine [illegible] county in good working order [illegible] his few days stay at his old home, [illegible] the Philadelphia Press, and the party [illegible] of last year was given on Tuesday. Wise, the Democrat who is under [illegible] for fraudulently altering the [illegible] returns of last November, received [illegible] majority for Supervisor, and, of course, vindicated. It is now in order for the [illegible] to claim the election as an endorsement of Mr Cleveland's policy, [illegible] of civil service reform. [illegible] should be no delay in making this [illegible] particularly in view of Wise's election.

[illegible] Gallis Press (Dem) pays the following well deserved compliment to ex-Mayor Marble: "It appears from the reports and the books, that Hon. John G. Marble has handled the finances of the city during his two years term as Mayor, [illegible] the great advantage of taxpayers and [illegible] credit to himself. Two years ago the contingent fund was $2000 behind, [illegible] it is about $1000 to the good." Nor is this all. Figuring what has been paid on the city debt, and adding the increased value of city property, the city is $10,000 better off than it was two years ago. Mr Marble, in a quiet, unostentatious way has devoted close attention to every department of city business, and the financial results he has accomplished are, to say the least, satisfactory. He has well earned the privilege which he claimed this year of retiring from municipal service.

Loud as have been the complaints by Democratic orators in Congress and on the stump, as well as by the Democratic newspapers on account of what was asserted to be an unnecessarily large number of employes in the Government departments in Washington, it turns out that in a short six weeks the heads of nearly all of the Departments have discovered that the clerical force is insufficient to perform the work required of it and to prevent the accumulation of arrears, says a Washington despatch. Some of the heads of departments complain not only that the number of clerks is too small, but the salaries, in some cases, are too low. For example, Secretary Lamar is anxious to find a suitable man to succeed Chief Clerk Lockwood, of the Interior Department. Mr. Lamar finds difficulty in making the change because the salary of the office is too small. In the Navy and the Post Office Departments, as well as in the Pension Office, it has already been found necessary to require the clerks to remain at their desks several hours longer each day than has been the custom.

A Washington despatch to the Boston Journal says: The Attorney General has completed his opinion upon the question submitted to him by the President as to the eligibility of Gen. Lawton to hold Federal office, notwithstanding his disabilities have not been removed. The opinion of the Attorney General is that the pardon of President Johnson relieved Gen Lawton of the offence of treason, and that the pardon of Andrew Johnson restored him to the same rights as a citizen which he enjoyed prior to his participation in the civil war. The opinion of the Attorney General had been awaited with great interest, but it is denied to the press. Those who have charge of it say that the Administration does not deem it expedient to make it public. The inference is that, supported by this opinion, the President will re-appoint Gen Lawton as Minister to Russia, and will reserve the opinion of the Attorney General to be sent to the Senate, in case it should be called for, as it most certainly will be. Some of the Republican Senators who remain in the city say that the nomination of Gen Lawton will be strongly opposed on the Republican side, including Mr Edmunds, Mr Evarts, Mr Sherman and Mr Hoar, who have very decidedly expressed the opinion that Mr Lawton was ineligible; that the pardon of Andrew Johnson relieved him simply of the criminal liability for his offence, but that it did not restore to him [illegible] and could not relieve him of the disabilities imposed by the Fourteenth Amendment.

Logan on Lincoln

The following address was delivered by General John A. Logan at the memorial services held in honor of Abraham Lincoln at Springfield, Ill, Wednesday:

"On February 12 seventy-six years ago, in the midst of a hardy pioneer people in Hardin County, Ky., a son called Abraham was born unto Thomas and Nancy Lincoln. A few years later this son is found with his parents in Indiana, where [illegible] at farm work in assisting his father. There was no opportunity offered him for receiving an education. Under the guidance of his mother, however, he was taught to read and write. He was of studious habits and carefully read all the books he could borrow from the neighbors. All that I am or hope to be, he said, I owe to my angel mother.

"In his twenty [illegible] year he is found in Illinois doing manual labor, though [illegible] sometimes he was always found with books in hand storing his mind with useful knowledge. He was a constant reader of the Bible as well as of Shakespeare's works, and from these he acquired his broader understanding of human actions and that which influences the minds of men than all those who claim to be educated can ever hope to understand. He served in the Black Hawk war, afterward several times in our State Legislature, and one term in Congress. Yet until 1858, when he joined in debate with the [illegible] Stephen A. Douglas, nothing seemed to afford the opportunity for him to prove to the country his great ability as a lawyer, statesman and debator, as well as a man of thought, research and great power of analysis.

"In that great debate he displayed such wonderful ability as at once to give him a National reputation. His great mind seemed to unfold to his audience danger after danger that then menaced our beloved country. He so held the mirror before the people that they could plainly see the troubles which must come in the future if the then policy should be persisted in. He foreshadowed disaster and suggested the way to avoid it. He exhibited clearly to the people that if the [illegible] structure of this Union must come, we ourselves must be the authors and finishers. His arguments were convincing, his deductions and logic irresistible. In all his speeches his basis was right against wrong. He convinced all who heard him that he was a man of generous impulses and great kindness of heart. He seemed to feel the wrongs of all down trodden and oppressed humanity as his own. The impression left upon his hearers was that he had dedicated himself to a work in their behalf.

"When elected President of the United States he entered upon the duties of that office with malice toward none, with charity for all; and though the circumstances were of the most trying character that had ever surrounded any man in undertaking to administer the affairs of a Nation, yet he grasped with firm hold on the helm of the ship of State and moved on calmly and coolly [illegible] performance of the arduous duties assigned him. He met each condition of things as presented to him. His great mind took in every situation, his heart was developed. He proved himself equal to any and all emergencies, and while our country was passing through the severest ordeal he kept up with the advancing sentiments of the people, and never going ahead [illegible] lagging behind, always taking advantage of the proper moment to do the right thing, as was exemplified by his proclamation of emancipation, giving freedom to an oppressed race. He [illegible] questions at an opportune moment, and seemed ever full of hope as well as confident of the ultimate success and complete restoration of the Union.

"Twenty years ago to-day, early in his second term as President, and just as his proud anticipations and fondest hopes were being realized, he fell at the hands of an assassin, a martyr to the cause of human freedom. As the tallest oak in the forest falls, causing the earth to tremble at the shock, so his fall caused the Nation to tremble. Stalwart men cried aloud and wept. Women wrung their hands and appealed to Heaven to know why this [illegible] wrong should have been permitted. The people mourned and would not be comforted. All civilized countries were still [illegible] [illegible] covered the whole land, [illegible] grief and sorrow were [illegible] still.

"In the life of this man there is a lesson that ought to be taught the present and future generations which would be of more value than the gold that glistens. Coming from the lower walks of life, without any of the advantages now within the reach of all, he struggled through poverty along the rugged pathway of life, overcoming all obstacles that opposed until he attained the highest position among men. His great heart and mind were directed on the line of doing good to his fellow man. Entirely absorbed by this thought in favor of struggling humanity, he had no time to devote to the accumulation of wealth. The benefits showered upon oppressed humanity by his great ability and kind heart, by far outreached those which could have been accomplished by the riches of a Croesus.

"If we could but see him as his sainted spirit stands to-day, not in the blood besmeared temple of human bondage, but radiant with the light of liberty and the glory of God playing around him, with shattered fetters and broken chains at his feet, we would behold one of the noblest spirits that ever passed through the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem into the presence of the great white throne of our Heavenly Father."

Circumstances Altar Cases.

[Albany Journal]

In the case of Postmaster Palmer of Rome, President Cleveland explains that he summarily superceded the incumbent of the office because he was responsible for the delinquencies of his deputy and he adds: "I shall do all in my power to rid the public service of officers who exhibit such loose ideas of their duty to the Government. * * * If I cannot remove this delinquent postmaster I can at least suspend him; This I am determined to do promptly." This was the action President Cleveland took in the case of a Republican postmaster of a little interior city of New York who had not been charged with any crime or shortcoming except that he was not vigilant in supervising the conduct of his deputy. By this laxness on his part the Government was defrauded of a few hundred dollars, restitution for which was promptly made. Davidson, on the other hand, is the Democratic sheriff of the largest city in the State. He is a prominent Democratic politician. The management of his office was so notoriously corrupt that the Legislature ordered an investigation and found a condition of things amazingly bad, so bad that public restitution was enforced. Did Governor Cleveland say at once when this matter was laid bare before him: "If I cannot remove this delinquent I can surely suspend him?" Not a word of this kind. He let the case go by default, to the astonishment of those who had believed in his rigid independence and thorough conscientiousness. Governor Cleveland acted like a coward in the Davidson case. He was no better in his condescending treatment of Hubert O. Thompson. He is no better in tolerating in public office Eugene Higgins, the Baltimore ballot-box manipulator and gambler.

A Fraud.

A bogus concern calling itself the "Bangor Business Bureau" is sending out circular letters to postmasters in this vicinity, promising to aid the recipient to retain his position for a "moderate commission." It is found on the face of it as no such concern would have the least influence with the Administration, and the letter is undoubtedly sent out in the hope of striking some thoughtless person who might be induced to forward the writer a few dollars. Following is a copy of one of the letters:

CIRCULAR LETTER.

BANGOR, April 12, 1885.

DEAR SIR:

It is apparent that the National Administration do not intend to move with inconsiderate haste in the matter of appointments to Office.

Whatever motives, either partisan or otherwise, that govern for the time being it is evident, that time is to be taken for a thoughtful consideration and conclusions carefully determined.

To be in readiness is the duty of the hour. Incumbents desiring to retain their places, and would like to avail themselves of quiet outside service, can do so through an agency established for the ostensible object of promoting civil service upon the [illegible] principles especially when it is clearly manifest that the wants of a community can be better subserved by the present incumbent, whose compensation could be no inducement to another except the limited political influence [illegible] of such [illegible] might confer.

We are allied politically with the administration of President Cleveland, and propose to receive and [illegible] directly, and present to the departments at Washington any and all applications confided to us. [illegible] [illegible] references. Get neighbors and friends without distinction of party to recommend your appointment. Address for appointment the Postmaster General. One of the leading features of this Agency, is to be direct personal communication with, or written statement to the appropriate department having the required supervision of [illegible] matters presented.

There are hundreds of cases we can [illegible] in without compromising a single political principle, and where the most fastidious partisan can take no exception.

Our charges for service are governed by the amount of compensation received by the incumbent and as will be seen a moderate commission, which covers all expenses to the applicant. Such reply as [illegible] office is $5.00.

If for any reason we cannot entertain propositions we shall frankly decline and return the sum forwarded.

Reasonable political fidelity [illegible] to be expected, but we do not propose to give [illegible] [illegible] to it. Something, however, [illegible] be [illegible] [illegible] to be civil-[illegible] but when this shall be attempted, then manhood to the front.

Money Saved.

The premiums paid for life insurance may be said to represent money saved—[illegible] in case of early death, the return is out of all proportion to the premiums paid, and if life is exceedingly unlikely that [illegible] will ever reach an age where the cash paid for premiums will exceed the face of the policy. The outlay for a life policy is [illegible] comparatively small [illegible] can usually be afforded by any one having a moderate income.

Answer [illegible]. If not look upon the picture of a family brought up to comfort [illegible] with father has died and left [illegible] [illegible] poverty and want and then look upon [illegible] picture, where the husband and father [illegible] laid in a small portion of his income, and left a policy for $5,000 or $10,000. Which is the brighter picture, and which was their lot? Are you insured? Who can say one but feels that one of the greatest [illegible] of life has been left undone? THEIR CRIME EXPIATED.

Santore and Capone Hung

At Noon Yesterday.

Their Last Night on Earth.

THOMASTON, April 17. The last night [illegible] and Santore was passed as follows [illegible] from the detailed report of [illegible] watch who visited them every [illegible]. At 7 o'clock both called for the [illegible] to light their pipes, and at [illegible] sleeping. Santore awoke [illegible] to smoke. He said he had [illegible]. At [illegible] he was sleeping [illegible] his pipe and smoked [illegible] slept from 8 30 un- [illegible] he wanted to smoke.

Their Last Meal

[illegible] and smoked from [illegible] breakfast. When Santore re- [illegible] this morning he said [illegible] No fraid, trust [illegible] of his bread [illegible] nothing for [illegible] visited at 7 o'clock by [illegible] the prison physi- [illegible] of feeling sick, passing [illegible] over his breast [illegible]. He seemed greatly [illegible] knew what [illegible] place, to the [illegible] Santore [illegible]— He still clings to the belief that [illegible] but that his accomplice [illegible] he shows great joy [illegible] calls continually at [illegible] the most pleasant frame [illegible] he has been in prison. His [illegible] of their brightness [illegible] the visor of his [illegible] dangerous look.

Santore's Hopes

[illegible] excited of the two [illegible] his breast violently, waves his [illegible] exclaims "No fraid, [illegible]." He wrote on [illegible] book and passed it out for [illegible] this sentence: "The Justice [illegible] assassin story." Everything is quiet at the prison. The [illegible] work in the shops and there is [illegible] presence of visitors and [illegible] preparations to indicate the [illegible] terrible tragedy. Their spiritual advisers will visit them again this [illegible]. The effect of the approaching execution upon the rest of the prisoners is [illegible] slight. No mention of the [illegible] will be made in their presence. The [illegible] that the day of hanging is always [illegible] to-day. The sun [illegible] brightly into the cells of Capone [illegible].

[illegible] arrived at 9 o'clock and [illegible] with the doomed men dur- [illegible]. He was accompanied by [illegible] of Harrison avenue, Bos- [illegible].

The Sheriff [illegible] with the rope [illegible] inch in circumfer- [illegible] Massachusetts for [illegible]. It is of [illegible] and capable [illegible] great weight [illegible] ordinary [illegible].

Their Mutual Hatred

[illegible] each other and told [illegible] who was with them two [illegible] could forgive every one [illegible]. The priests have labored [illegible] with them but to no avail [illegible] to the last moment that he [illegible]. Santore's last letter [illegible] of those in the old [illegible] him money and the [illegible] with an affectionate adieu [illegible] relatives. In this letter he [illegible] protestations of innocence.

Those Who Were Present

[illegible] was assisted by deputies [illegible] D H Mansfield and C E Mor- [illegible] J M Peabody, of [illegible], Deputy Sheriff True of Ken- [illegible] Sheriff Wadsworth of [illegible] True B Pierce, the Knox [illegible] Attorney, Dr Roothe of Boston, [illegible] Jr, of the Rockland Courier [illegible] Oliver Otis of the Rockland Opin- [illegible] Inspectors Penn and Porter, [illegible] Belfast Journal Dr H Leven- [illegible] Physician H M Lord, of [illegible] Courier Gazette, Dr [illegible] of Rockland, Sylvester and [illegible] of [illegible], the interpreter, Joseph [illegible] Rockland, Dr Banks, of Rock- [illegible] Dr Gerrish of Portland, C L Mc- [illegible] of the Boston Journal, Andrews of [illegible] Journal witnessed the exe- [illegible].

The Solemn Procession

[illegible] minutes of 12 the death column [illegible] the cells and marched across the [illegible] yard. Sheriff Irish led followed [illegible] escorted by Sheriff Wadsworth and [illegible]. Next came Capone, follow- [illegible] by Father Boniface, Peterson and [illegible], repeating the Catholic death [illegible]. Both men had their arms pinioned and were dressed in black. They walked [illegible] and were a little pale, but Ca- [illegible] wore his ugly leer. They [illegible] to the scaffold and the noose was adjusted. Santore exclaimed that he for- [illegible], even Capone, speaking in Italian, [illegible] interpreting. Santore [illegible] good bye to all the officers of the prison who were present.

The Fatal Drop

Capone coolly surveyed the scaffold structure and stood firmly, as did also Santore. At 12 o'clock precisely the black caps were put on and Capone and Santore saw their last of the beautiful sunshine which flooded the ghastly scene. When the traps were sprung by the Sheriff the bodies fell the distance of eight feet, slightly rebounding. The scaffold creaked and groaned beneath its bound burden; no struggle ensued. There was a slight muscular contraction of the body of Capone a minute and a half after falling—very slight.

The pulse of Santore one minute and five seconds after falling beat 90, Capone [illegible], two minutes after falling, Santore 120, Capone 124, three minutes and a half, Santore 90, Capone 84, four and a half minutes Santore 50, Capone 68, five minutes, Santore 62, Capone 80. The pulse was feeble and indistinct. At eight minutes Santore's was very faint and the physician was not able to count it, Capone's was 42, as best they could judge. At eight and a half minutes the pulse of both ceased to beat.

Dead [illegible]

The bodies were then lowered so that the beats of the heart could be listened to. At nine minutes and a half Santore's heart beat very little, but Capone's quite distinctly. At ten minutes and a half there was a very slight beat of the heart. At thirteen minutes the heart ceased to beat altogether. At twenty-one minutes the bodies were cut down and put into coffins. The surgeons examined the bodies and found that the necks were broken, but whether they were dislocated and fractured dissection alone will tell.

Sheriff Irish conducted the affair quietly and with as little ostentation as possible. There was no display and no bungling. The two men were granted absolution before their death. The rites were conducted by Father Boniface. They both forgave each other, kissed the hands of the Warden, Deputy Warden and guards, bid all good bye, and called all of the officers good men.

FROM PORTLAND

Grand Army of the Republic

PORTLAND, Me, April 17. The Executive Committee of the Grand Army, received this morning applications for camp quarters from John A Hawes Post of East Boston, sixty men, John F Appleton Post, Farmington, Me, sixty men. The officers and delegates of the Department of New Jersey, many of whom will be accompanied by ladies, are assigned at the Preble House. Isaac C Campbell Post, Pembroke, Me, has applied for camp quarters.

FROM ELLSWORTH

Sudden Death of Rev Israel Hathaway.

ELLSWORTH, April 17. Rev Israel Hathaway, Methodist pastor at Swan's Island, aged sixty-five years, who has been ill with catarrh of the liver, died Thursday while being taken from the house to Swan's Island to join steamer Rockland. His remains were taken aboard from South West Harbor where a coffin was procured. They will be forwarded to East Machias, his former home.

FROM FARMINGTON

FARMINGTON, April 17. The Maine Central Railroad officials arrived at Farmington this noon on a tour of inspection. The party includes Arthur Sewall President, Bath, Payson Tucker, General Manager, Portland; Commissioners J F Anderson, A W Wildes and D N Mortland, Civil Engineer W A Allen, Manager's Secretary, F W Alken, Bridge Inspector Booker, Roadmasters Nevins and Wagg, and others.

RIEL'S REBELLION.

Anxiety About Gen. Middleton's Forces.

Reports of Riel's Movements

Given by an Alleged Deserter.

CHICAGO, April 17. The Daily News Winnipeg special says: To-day has been one of suspense as it was known that Gen Middleton would reach Clark's crossing sometime this afternoon. Not a day has passed since he began his march without news being received from him but up to a late hour to-night nothing has been received and there is a general feeling of anxiety about his fate. Gen Middleton himself expected a collision to-day or to-morrow.

A special from Qu Appelle says that Norbet Welsh a wealthy half breed in Qu Appelle Valley, arrived to-day from the rebel camp, claiming to be a deserter. He asserts that Gen Middleton is remaining in [illegible] quarters at Batouche and Riel, by evading him, will come down to Touchwood, seize the supplies there and go on to Fort Qu Appelle with two field pieces which he has.

Welsh says Middleton's scouts are not worth anything. They never sight the enemy whereas the half breed scouts are constantly within range of the Government scouts. Riel has very strong hope of starving the troops by cutting off their supplies.

According to Welsh Riel says he will rule or perish—will be king or die. Welsh says Riel also claims to have the promise of aid from Fenians and Irish nationalists and says he is acting under Divine instructions.

The Blackfeet on the War Path

A Daily News special from Winnipeg says a despatch from Medicine Hat says the Blackfeet have been [illegible] and now are on the war path.

FIRE RECORD.

Blaze in Boston

BOSTON, April 17. Fire occurred to-night in the six story brick block 33 to [illegible] Charlestown street, owned by the heirs of S P Longmaid and occupied by Holmes & Blanchard, machinists and millwrights, and several other firms. Loss $25,000, fully insured.

A Loss of $250 000

TAUNTON, N Y, April 17. The loss by fire in Katzenbach's hardware establishment last night, is now estimated at $250,000. Geo [illegible] the bookkeeper, was badly burned while trying to save the books.

SAMON EXECUTED

Thomas Samon, the New Hampshire Murderer, Hung Yesterday

CONCORD, April 17. Thomas Samon passed the night in the matron's room from which he was taken to the scaffold this morning. He evinced no desire to talk, and the little he did say had no reference to his terrible crime, but rather to his early life and his folks in Ireland. About seven o'clock last evening he ate supper and from that time until the Warden left him at 11 he remained silent and calm. The Warden remained with the doomed man until early this morning. At midnight Samon asked for coffee and cigars, which were furnished him, and he afterwards slept quietly.

At 6 o'clock this morning he arose and dressed himself in a new suit of black and then, dropping on his knees, continued in prayer a long time. At 6 30 Rev Fathers Barry and Henning went to the prison and remained with him until the last. They engaged in prayer and before Samon left to go upon the scaffold the last rites of the Catholic church were administered.

At 11 10 the warden delivered him to Sheriff Story, who read the death warrant to him in the matron's room. At 11 [illegible], the prisoner, accompanied by the Sheriff, his deputies and the priests, appeared and walked upon the scaffold. The priests offered a brief prayer. Sheriff Story then adjusted the noose and Father Barry pronounced final absolution.

During all the prayers Samon appeared uneasy and there was a nervous tremor about his eyes. His face and hands were purple. Immediately before Sheriff Story adjusted the black cap he kissed a crucifix and Father Henning. At 11 28 the fatal spring was touched. Samon fell about five feet and died easily, his pulse ceasing in six and one-half minutes.

VERMONT,

National Car Company

ST. ALBANS, April 17. At a meeting of the directors of the National Car Co, held here this afternoon, James R Langdon, of Montpelier, was elected President to fill the vacancy caused by Lansing Millis' death, and Henry L Millis was elected to fill the vacancy in the board. The meeting adopted resolutions bearing testimony to Millis' enterprise, business sagacity and tireless energy, which to the latest hour distinguished him.

CONNECTICUT

Recess of the Legislature—Final Adjournment Next Week

HARTFORD, April 17. Both Houses adjourned to-day to Wednesday of next week. The business of the session is substantially ended, and a final adjournment will be reached on Wednesday afternoon or Thursday.

GENERAL GRANT'S CONDITION.

Hope for His Recovery Expressed.

A Refreshing Night's Rest.

Better Than for Many Nights.

NEW YORK, April 17. Gen Grant's progress towards convalescence for the past two days has been truly phenomenal. His physicians now openly express their opinion that he will recover.

Morning Bulletin

8 30 A M—Gen Grant had a very refreshing sleep. He says he rested better than for many nights and feels strong enough to get up and dress for the day. He has taken nourishment without pain in swallowing, and has not since midnight been disturbed by coughing. His pulse and temperature are unchanged.

(Signed) G F SHRADY, M D

Sleeping Quietly

11 30 P M—General Grant passed most of the evening in the library with his family. He retired at 10 P M. He had some pain in his throat, but was not troubled in swallowing. He is now sleeping quietly.

FROM WASHINGTON.

News About the Capital

Appointments by the President

WASHINGTON, April 17. The President made the following appointments to-day: Consuls General—James M Morgan, of South Carolina at Melbourne, Jacob Mueller, of Ohio, at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. Consuls—Charles W Wagner of Missouri at Toronto, Thomas P Welsh, of Arkansas, at Hamilton, Canada; Francis H Wigfall, of Maryland at Leeds England; Charles Jonas, of Wisconsin, at Prague Austria, Richard Stout[illegible] N J, at Rotterdam, Netherlands, Wm Slade of Ohio, at Brussels Belgium, J Harvey Brigham, of Louisiana at Paso del Norte, Mexico, Wm T Black of Delaware, at Nuremburg, Germany. [illegible] Wharton, of Pennsylvania, Examiner of Claims in the State Department.

Minister Phelps's Farewell Call

Mr Phelps, the newly appointed Minister to Great Britain made his farewell call on the President to-day, prior to his departure for England.

The Sentence of General Hazen

The Court martial proceedings in the case of Gen W B Hazen were made public to-day. The sentence is a reprimand which is made by the President as follows: "The proceedings, findings and sentence, in the case of Brig General Wm B Hazen chief signal officer, are hereby approved. In giving effect to the sentence of the court martial it has to be observed that the more exalted the rank held by an officer of the army, the greater is the responsibility resting upon him to afford through his own subordination to his superior officers an example for all others who may be of inferior rank in the service. In an officer of fine sensibility the effect of being brought to trial before court martial must be in itself a mortification and punishment.

"In the foregoing case the accused, whose high rank and long experience in the service should have inspired him with a full realization of that respect for the constituted authority which is essential to military discipline has been adjudged guilty of indulging in unwarranted and captious criticism of his superior officer, the Secretary of War, thereby setting a pernicious example, subversive of discipline and the interests of the service. Subordination is necessarily the primal duty of a soldier whatever his grade may be. In losing sight of this principle the accused has brought upon himself the condemnation of his brother officers who examined the charges against him, and seriously impaired his own honorable record of previous conduct. It is to be hoped that the lesson will not be forgotten."

Not in the Line of Civil Service

Secretary Manning to-day appointed B Frank Abbett of New Jersey Chief of Division in the office of the Auditor of the Treasury for the Postoffice Department, vice Mr Wildecombe, of Maryland resigned by request. The appointee is brother of Gov Abbett of New Jersey.

Secretary Manning's action in thus filling the office by appointment from outside, in lieu of by promotion, is regarded as important by civil service reformers, since it is thought to be an indication of the policy which the administration will pursue with reference to appointments to fill places of chiefs of divisions.

Efforts have been made, it is said, to induce the President to amend the civil service rules to include chiefs of divisions among the officers whose positions shall be filled by examination and promotion, but without success.

The Government Aid to the New Orleans Exposition

The Attorney General has rendered an opinion in regard to the manner of disbursing the appropriation of $335,000 made at the last session of Congress for final aid to the World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition now being held in New Orleans. The Attorney General holds that according to the act of Congress the appropriation can only be used in the settlement of claims of persons or corporations doing business outside of Louisiana and for the payment of premiums already or hereafter to be awarded.

Under this decision none of the many claims of residents of Louisiana can be paid out of this appropriation. It was expected after paying the preferred claims against the Exposition that there would be a balance of $100,000 which could be used in paying claims of residents of Louisiana. Director General Burke has used every argument he could avail himself of to accomplish this result, but was unable to convince the Attorney General that such was the purpose of Congress in making the appropriation. It is likely that complications will arise in regard to the additional appropriation of $15,000 made for the Woman's department of the Exposition. It is claimed both by the managers of the Exposition and the ladies having direct control of the department in question. It is likely, therefore, that the Attorney General will be called on to determine who is entitled to control that appropriation.

WINNEBAGO RESERVATION

Settlers Complaining

ST. PAUL, Minn, Specials from Chamberlain Canning, Mitchell, Huron, Pierre and other points interested in the Winnebago reservation indicate much fighting and great hardships to the enemy from the proclamation of President Cleveland vacating President Arthur's order opening the reservation to settlement. Indignation meetings will probably result when the order is generally understood. Old soldiers among the settlers say it is rank injustice that their little homesteads should be taken after being entered in good faith, when no benefit will accrue to the Indians who would make no use of them. Trouble is expected for force may be required to dispossess them.

HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Contractor and Assistant Indicted

NEW YORK, April 17. District Attorney Martine this evening announced that the grand jury had indicted contractor Charles A. Buddensiek and Assistant Frank for manslaughter in the second degree.

One Hundred Rebels Drowned by the Colombian Government.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 17. Despatches received in this city say the number of rebels captured at and after the burning of Colon by the Colombian government troops will reach 400. Authentic reports say that on Wednesday officials of the Colombian government selected 100 of the worst rebels imprisoned at Colon and placing them on board a steamer carried them out into the bay where the entire 100 was thrown overboard and drowned.

Mr Gladstone's Statement

In the House of Commons Mr Gladstone said: "We asked Lumsden for a full, consecutive account of the events of the 30th of March the day of the Kushk battle. A telegram from him has arrived since we sent our request. This telegram is dated [illegible] April 13th. It is in cipher and is now being deciphered. We shall be unable to say anything further on this subject till the despatch is fully deciphered. The fact that Russian commanders were aware of the agreement of the 17th of March before the 30th, and the question as to whether or not he acted on instructions or contrary to instructions concerning that agreement, would form the subject of future communications between the government and [illegible]."

In regard to the establishment by the Russians of an administration at Penjdeh, the Government knew nothing officially and must await fuller information.

Mr Gladstone also said: The Government will Monday or Tuesday next ask the House to sanction a vote of credit. When this is reached we will state how much money is wanted and what it is wanted for and will then probably be able to cover the entire question fully.

PERSONAL. We were pleased to receive a call last evening from Hon John S Arnold of Caribou who with his wife and daughter are visiting his brother Jesse M Arnold Esq prior to their departing for their new home in Minneapolis, Minnesota, where their three sons are now settled. Mr Arnold has been one of the most energetic business men of Aroostook county, and as one of its influential citizen his removal will be sincerely regretted. His many friends in Maine will unite with us in wishing himself and family health and prosperity in their Western home.

Quite an excitement was created last week at Milo by the escape of a deer slayer from arrest. He took the train from Katahdin Iron Works, riding in a box car with some horses. The game warden [illegible] by passenger car attached to the same train, telegraphing to Milo for an officer to assist in the capture. But the man adjusted his snow shoes and when the train stopped at the station he jumped from the box car and took to the fields and wood, regardless of the invitations of the officer, who, having no snow shoes, could not follow him.

IMPROVED RAILWAY FACILITIES. We learn that on or about June 22d a through express train will be put on between this city and Presque Isle, leaving here in the morning and arriving in Presque Isle early in the evening. A train will leave the latter place in the morning and arrive in this city in time to connect with the evening train to Boston. The Aroostook people have been asking for some time for these improved railroad facilities, and General Manager Burpee has responded to their call as promptly as he was able. Under the new arrangement the mail facilities will be greatly improved and all the conditions now existing will be bettered.

PINE TREE WHEEL CLUB. At an adjourned meeting of this club held Thursday evening it was voted to hold a race meeting at Maplewood Park on the 23d of July next. It is proposed to have a two mile State championship race, a one mile club championship, one-half mile race in three heats, tug of war, consolation race, etc. No pains will be spared to make this meeting the event of the season in Maine. The races will come off during the visit of the "Down East" touring party en route from Moosehead Lake to Bar Harbor. The committee from the club who will have charge of the affair are Messrs Charles S. Maynard, James Crosby and Will Stone. Mr. Worthington, of the Springfield, Mass, club was present at the meeting.

THE BANGOR HISTORICAL SOCIETY have received from the Oneida Historical Society, Utica, N Y, a neatly printed and valuable volume of 228 pages, octavo, containing the transactions of that society, 1881—1884. It contains an account of the Centennial celebration of the settlement of Whitestown, N Y, Whitesboro's Golden Age, Waggoners' re-interment, (a revolutionary patriot), dedication of the site of Old Fort Schuyler, and the dedication of the Oriskany Monument, where Gen Herkimer with his forces repelled the British invasion. It has seven illustrations—Hon Hugh White, of the seventh generation of the original settlers, the Whitestown Monument, seal of the village of Whitesborough, Gen Peter Schuyler, the Oriskany Monument, and the pictorial tablets, Gen Herkimer mortally wounded directing the Oriskany battle and conflict of the German American and Indian.

[illegible] FREE FROM ICE

The Penobscot Probably Open to Navigation To-day

Few Bangor persons in Bangor would have thought yesterday morning that there would be any movement of the ice in the river during the day. Hardly any one has predicted that it would leave the river before to-morrow and many have set the date for its departure about the 20th [illegible]. The wind and rain have had during the past few days a great effect on the body of ice in the river. It has gradually rotted away, but no open places have been [illegible] visible. Down river it has been wearing away constantly for [illegible] and at [illegible] yesterday [illegible] at Bucksport and the people there [illegible] that some movement was taking place above. Early in the afternoon the river was clear as far up as Brewer Village. The ice left the river from [illegible] Works [illegible] town to [illegible] yesterday [illegible] the pond above the Water Works [illegible] three or four feet. There was no movement of the ice opposite the city until about twenty minutes of four o'clock when almost [illegible].

For the past few days a seam has been seen extending across the river from the wharves near the railroad bridge straight as a line could be drawn and directly at right angles with the current. At the [illegible] above [illegible] the ice parted on this [illegible] and the lower side moved down river about two hundred feet. The [illegible] of the ice were not broken [illegible] the movement and still remained [illegible]. It was a mystery to the lookers on how the ice could move such a distance without being broken. About half past five it began to break up and run down river rapidly and in less than an hour [illegible] around High Head. At the Penobscot [illegible] which [illegible] there last night the river is [illegible] with the exception of that [illegible] it is thought that that will disappear this morning. Possibly the Boston boat will come up to-day, but it is very doubtful. There is no doubt however, but that the boat will come up on her next trip. The steamboat men and owners of boats generally are glad to see the port so early clear from ice and [illegible] surprised to see the movement in that direction [illegible] yesterday.

AMUSEMENTS

The Entertainment Last Evening

It is almost needless to say that a very large crowd were in attendance at the Opera House last evening to witness the presentation of [illegible] Factory Girl by the Hoy Crowell Dramatic Company. Miss Crowell as 'Martha Gibbs' gave as good satisfaction as in any previous plays. She is a pretty young lady and a sweet actress and the more she is seen [illegible] the greater is their liking for her. Her support last night was excellent. Mr [illegible] P Sullivan, Frank Allen, [illegible] Dudley and Miss Ada Allen were the favorites of the audience, and all [illegible]. Mr Dudley is very funny and [illegible] on the stage brings forth roars of laughter. In the farce 'Three Married Men' which concluded the evening's entertainment Messrs Dudley, [illegible] and Allen were the central figures. Many Bangor people have seen the piece presented and know that it is very laughable. The parts were so well filled last evening and the presentation was so perfect that the mirth of the audience did not cease from the beginning to the end of the performance. The audience was well satisfied when they left the house. This afternoon Uncle Tom's Cabin will be presented by the company. The children will be admitted to all parts of the house for ten cents. A very handsome doll was exhibited in the window of the City Drug Store yesterday that will be given to the child occupying the lucky seat. The company present 'Divorce' on [illegible] Bartley Campbell's works, this evening. The sale of seats has been large and undoubtedly the house will be crowded. The sale of seats for the performances next week [illegible] splendidly.

SYMPATHY FOR GENERAL GRANT

Resolution Passed by B H Beale Post G A R

At the meeting of B H Beale Post, No 12, G A R, Thursday evening, the following resolution, which explains itself was adopted:

HEADQUARTERS
B H BEALE POST, No 12, G A R
Bangor, Maine April 16 1885

General Ulysses S Grant, United States Army, New York, N Y

SIR

At the regular meeting of this Post April 16 1885, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the members of this Post earnestly share in the grief of the whole people of our [illegible] Nation at the [illegible] physical afflictions which have befallen our great and beloved chieftain, General Ulysses S. Grant, and we hereby extend to his family the expression of our deep sympathy, and to him the assurance of the undying affection of his old soldiers. Wherever the veterans of the Grand Army assemble the first thought is of the great Commander who led them to such glorious victory, and from every camp fire of patriotism goes up the fervent prayer that the assaults of disease may yet be repulsed, and that the precious life may be spared to the Country to which he has rendered such inestimable service.

In behalf of the Post
Yours in Friendship, Charity and Loyalty,

Grand Army Encampment.

We understand that arrangements are about completed for the encampment of the Grand Army at Portland, and that preparations will be made to receive an immense number of citizens as well as old soldiers. Vermont will appear in the [illegible] with a thousand of the Green Mountain boys, and the New Hampshire veterans are coming with a full brigade. Massachusetts promises a division of more than five thousand men. Every part of our country will be represented by delegations even from distant California and New Mexico.

It is important that the old soldiers of this State be fully and properly represented on this occasion as it will be the only time they will ever have to enter in their [illegible] of the Union army.

It has been suggested that the veterans of this State organize as divisions and appear as such in the parade rather than as Posts, [illegible] of which number but few [illegible] the effect will be far more imposing. A meeting of old soldiers from Aroostook, Hancock, Washington and Piscataquis counties will soon be called to unite with those of Penobscot valley and form a big battalion to appear at Portland as the Division of Eastern Maine. A thousand of these veterans marching in a solid column will present an appearance in keeping with the glorious victories of the [illegible] they will represent. VET

Wanted a Wife.

I.

Jack Hornby, of Brazenface College, Oxford, had just finished his usual after-breakfast pipe, on the last day of the summer term, 1883, when his attention was arrested by a sharp rap at his door, immediately followed by the entrance of the well-dressed person of my college friend, Methven.

"Come along in," said Hornby, "and light yourself a pipe."

"No, thank ye, can't stop," replied Methven, "as I have a lot to do this morning; but I thought I would just run across and tell you a bit of news. I have just arranged a glorious lark, at the expense, I need hardly say, of old Crofton. He has come too cute lately to be caught by our old time-honored jokes, so I have arranged the following plan: A week ago I inserted in the agony column of the Morning Advertiser a glowing matrimonial advertisement, in which I stated that the advertiser, who was handsome, rich and all that sort of thing, desired to meet with a pretty and accomplished girl with a view to matrimony. All applicants were to send their photographs, the replies to be sent to H. C., No. 151 St Giles, Oxford—that's the house where my scout lives, and so of course I told him to bring me any letters thus addressed. I got no reply for a day or so, but four days ago I received a letter from a certain damsel, who described herself as young, handsome and accomplished, inclosing the photograph of a very pretty girl, and asking me when and where I should meet her in town, and signed herself Miss L. Bernard, Piccadilly Circus Post Office; she also expressed a desire to have the advertiser's photograph. I promptly sent her that of old Crofton, which he had lately given me, and said I would write to-night when and where I could meet her; so my scheme is to somehow induce Crofton to meet this girl; she will of course recognize him by the photograph I have sent, will probably rush into his arms, the Kangaroo will be utterly overpowered, and there will be an interesting denouement. Now, Hornby, don't you think that a magnificent piece of strategy?"

"No, indeed I don't," said Hornby. "I think it an infernal shame; and what's more, I have half a mind to go and tell the victim of the hoax."

"Oh, come now," said Methven, "you'd never do that, Jack, I know. Well, I can't stay any longer, so good-bye for the present."

There is not the very slightest doubt that if the fates had not intervened Hornby would have gone straight to Crofton and warned him of the impending hoax, and this story would never have been written; but, as it happened, no sooner had Methven gone out of Hornby's rooms than in rushed the secretary of the college cricket club in a state of breathless anxiety. There was a match at 11.30; it was now 11 o'clock, and he could only get together eight men. So Hornby was promptly enlisted, and by the time the match was over Methven and his scheme had entirely faded from his not too retentive memory. Methven, in the meantime, had gone straight to Crofton's rooms. Now this Crofton, who was about to fall a victim to Methven's wiles, was the son of a large Australian sheep farmer, and had come up to Brazenface the previous October. Like most colonists, who have not been to school in England, he was very simple and unsophisticated, and though "Kangaroo," as he was generally called, was very popular, he was constantly being made the victim of small practical jokes, most of which were originated by Methven, who was the professional hoaxer of Brazenface. He always forgave them heartily and joined in the laugh himself. However, his one year's residence in college had opened his eyes a little, and being naturally anything but a fool, his friends found it not quite so easy to take him in now as it used to be, and several attempts having failed, Methven, to sustain his waning reputation as a joker, had concocted the plan he had just disclosed to Hornby. He found the genial giant busily packing his traps ready for going down the next day. After chatting a moment or so, the tempter began:

"As you're going to town to-morrow, I want you to do me a little favor. I promised to meet a girl, a cousin of mine, to-morrow. We had each got an order for the House of Commons, and I was to have escorted her; and as we then had to have a lunch together at Lucas' before we went in, we had arranged to meet at a quarter past two at the Westminster bridge landing pier, that being a place where we couldn't possibly miss one another. Now, as bad luck will have it, the dean has sent for me to see him after collections, so that I can't get up to town in time. Unfortunately I can't let the girl know, because she's away on a visit for a day or two to some friends, whose address I have forgotten, and she won't return home till after she has been to the house. Now, I can't let the poor child to wait an hour for me, so would you mind going there a quarter past two and telling her I can't come, because of that beastly dean? And so that you can't mistake her, I've brought you her photograph. By-the-by, her name's Miss Bernard. Now, will this be too much trouble for you?"

"Oh, not a bit," said Crofton. "I shall be delighted."

"Well, remember, Westminster landing pier, at a quarter-past two. And now, good-bye, and a pleasant 'long' to you."

Methven, highly elated with the result of his scheme, immediately wrote a note to Miss Bernard that H. C. would meet her at a quarter-past two punctually, and that she must come up and speak to him if she saw him first.

Next morning Crofton, having undergone that dread ordeal called "collections," having been bullied alternately by the principal, the dean and the senior tutor, hurried off to the station and just managed to catch the mid-day express up to town. On his arrival, having left his traps at his hotel, he rushed off to Westminster bridge landing pier and arrived there within a minute or two of the appointed time. There were but few people on it when he arrived, and certainly no one resembling in the slightest degree the photograph of Methven's cousin. He looked up and down, but no—there was only one young lady there, and she wasn't in the least like the photograph. She was standing close to the ticket office, holding the hand of a little boy of ten or so—and she seemed to watch Crofton with an amused smile as he impatiently walked up and down, looking now at his watch and now at the Parliament clock tower. The little boy, in the meantime, getting tired of waiting, had wandered away under the protecting chains of the side, and began to play with a little dog that was vaguely roaming about. The young lady did not miss him, and when Crofton happened to turn he saw the child, in trying to avoid a sudden rush of the dog, stumble and fall over the edge into the river. The child yelled, the girl shrieked, and the dog barked for sympathy, but Crofton, who fortunately had plenty of presence of mind, and was a good swimmer, dived quietly into the water, caught up the child in a couple of strokes, and in a very short time had restored his dripping burden to the young lady. She was of course most grateful to him for having saved the life of her little brother (for so the child turned out to be,) and as Crofton put them in a cab, she asked him to call on them at home and give her parents an opportunity of personally thanking him. Crofton at first pooh-poohed the idea of being thus made a hero of, but there was a pleading look in her pretty eyes which quite overcame his scruples; and having ascertained that her father was Mr. West, and lived at No. 139 Cavendish Square, he promised to call there the following afternoon. And, as there was still no sign of Miss Bernard, and he was dripping wet, he hailed a passing cab and returned to his hotel.

The next day, according to his promise, he called at No. 139 Cavendish Square, and was received kindly by Miss West, his new acquaintance of yesterday, and her mother, a kindly old lady, who thanked him most volubly for having saved dear Bertie's life, who, she added, was none the worse for his ducking, and was at that moment in bed with a mustard plaster on his chest and a basin of gruel by his side (probably thinking the drowning would have been infinitely preferable to the doctoring.)

Of course Crofton was invited to stay to dinner, so as to meet Mr. West, who did not return from business till after six. About that time he arrived, and a fine fellow he was, and right heartily did he welcome his new acquaintance. After dinner, as he and Harry were discussing a bottle of '31 port, Mr. West found out from the simple-minded fellow that he was a native of Australia, and that, though he was happy enough during term time with his college chums, he found it very dull during the vacation, having but few relations and friends in the old country; and so Mr. West, liking the honest, manly lad, and feeling, of course, intensely grateful to him for having saved his child from drowning, invited him to spend a month with him at his shooting lodge in Scotland. Crofton, being passionately devoted to sport, snapped at the offer; and so it was arranged that he should go up to Mr. West's shooting lodge, in Cromarty, on the 11th of August. To this day he swears that the month he spent at Balbriggan Lodge was the happiest time of his life—good sport, nice men in the house, and—ah! for best of all, the society of Lillian West. At first it struck him that she looked upon him for some reason or other as rather a puppy, which considerably surprised him, for, whatever his faults might be, conceit was certainly not one of them. But as time went on, and she had plenty of opportunity of seeing what a modest, sterling fellow he was (beside being the best shot of the party,) the feeling seemed to pass away, and soon gave place to a tender regard. Sunday afternoon rambles through the heather, cosy chats in the gloaming after dinner, lessons in the mysteries of "go-bang" and chess, have brought together less susceptible hearts than those of Harry Crofton and Lillian West, and the day before he was returning to England he plucked up courage, proposed, and to his delight was accepted.

II.

The next morning, however, just before starting home, Lillian came up to him and said:

"Harry, dear, before you go I want you to forgive me for the silly joke I played on you about that advertisement."

"Advertisement!" said he, "what advertisement?"

"Why, the one you put in the Morning Advertiser."

Crofton looked very mystified, and again shook his head.

"Oh, come, now, Harry," replied Lillian, "it is not a bit of use of your trying to deceive me; do you mean to say you didn't put the advertisement in the Morning Advertiser?" and so saying, she drew from her card-case a small newspaper cutting and handed it to Crofton. It read as follows:

Wanted, a Wife.—The advertiser, who is strikingly handsome, very accomplished, and extremely rich, wishes to meet with a young lady with a view to matrimony. She must be good-looking, amiable and accomplished. Applicants must forward their photograph and address H. C., 151 St. Giles, Oxford."

"Never saw it before in my life," said Crofton.

"And you never wrote this?" continued Miss West, handing the last letter from H. C. to Miss L. Bernard, appointing the place and time of meeting.

"Most certainly not; it's not a bit like my handwriting. Couldn't write so well if I tried a month."

"Well, Harry, you must at least own that this is your photograph."

"Good gracious, yes!" replied Crofton, "that is mine, sure enough; but who on earth could have sent it, and why to you of all the people?"

"Oh," said Lillian, "I'm afraid you will think me very silly, but when I read that advertisement I longed, I simply yearned—for I'm very curious, Harry, as you'll soon find out—to see in the flesh the human being who could be so consummately conceited as to frame an advertisement like that; so I replied to it, directing my letter from the post office at Piccadilly Circus, and signing myself by a fictitious name. I also sent the photograph of a pretty little maid I once had, and the next day received the photograph and this letter you see. Just fancy, with Bertie as my companion, feeling sure that the advertiser could not possibly mistake me for the original of Parker's photograph, I went to the Westminster landing pier at the appointed time. Imagine my delight, then, when I saw you, the original of the photograph, stalking up and down the pier, apparently awaiting the faithless damsel. But, Harry dear, if you did not go to meet me, why in the world did you go to the pier at that very time?"

"I went on a commission," said he, "for a college friend of mine named Methven."

"What! Mr. Methven, of Brazenface?" said she.

"Why, yes; he's a friend of yours?"

"Oh, I only met him while staying in the country last Christmas, and, I think, Harry, he liked me better than I did him."

"Well," continued Crofton, "I went there to meet a cousin of his, and to give her a message from him, but I have a shrewd idea that this is one of his jokes he is always playing."

"But, tell me, how were you to know this young lady, Harry?" said Lillian.

"He showed me a photograph, by which I was to recognize her."

"Was it that of a pretty girl with a large hat and feather, and a fan in her hand?" said Lillian, with a smile.

"The very same," said Crofton.

"Then, Harry, you are quite right, it was a practical joke, for that was Parker's photograph which I sent to the mysterious H. C. And now, Harry dear, it's not a bit of use getting angry about; for we were both 'sold' a little, and it has ended very happily for you and me; and we will make a promise not to chaff one another in the future for the parts we each played in the 'Comedy of Errors.'"

I need hardly say Crofton sealed the bargain with a kiss.

When Harry next returned to Brazenface the October term had begun. Port Meadow was flooded, the elms outside St. John's were rapidly losing their leaves, and the creeper on St. Mary's Porch was in all the glory of its autumn foliage. Crofton arrived the first day of term, just in time for "hall," and as he was finishing his dinner, the scout who had waited on the third-year table handed him the following brief epistle scrawled on the back of the dinner bill:

"Dear Kangaroo—Come to my room directly after 'hall.' Yours ever, John Hornby."

So directly after "hall," Crofton went straight to Hornby's rooms and found him uncorking a bottle of college port; and over this bottle, soothed by the fragrant weed, Harry Crofton told Hornby the story of his love, the whole tale—how it had happened, and what a very lucky dog he was. He had just finished his narrative when a knock came at the door, and in walked Methven, just arrived.

"How d'ye do, Jack? Hello, Kangaroo, how are you, old chap?" he began.

But, somehow, the look on Crofton's face Methven had never seen before, and what's more, didn't like it.

However, he continued: "Well, did you meet my cousin, eh? Come, come, old chap, you must really forgive me; it was a beastly shame, I own."

"Now, look here," said Crofton quietly, and there was an ugly look in his eye and a firmness in his jaw that made Methven unconsciously creep near the door—"I don't want to have a row with any man, much less in Jack Hornby's rooms. But I tell you plainly, I think it awfully low of you to take advantage of my good nature in the way you did—I strongly advise you for the future, if you like a whole skin, not to try the game again. I may tell you, your scheme entirely failed, and it's entirely through your attempt at a hoax I have become engaged to the nicest little girl in England."

"Really," said Methven with a sneer, "then, I think, the least you can do is to introduce us, as she may possibly like to make the acquaintance of the unconscious author of her happiness."

"Perhaps she might," replied Crofton, quietly, "if she hadn't unfortunately made it before. Good night, Jack," and so saying he left the room.

"There, Methven," said Hornby, "I knew quite well some row would come of this hoax of yours."

"Well, tell me what happened, Jack, if you know."

Thereupon Hornby told the whole story from beginning to end; when he had finished Methven said:

"I wonder who the girl was, and when and where she met me."

"Of course I can't tell you the latter," said Hornby, as he walked up to the chimney piece to refill his pipe, "but her name, if I remember rightly, is Miss Lillian West."

Hornby heard a sharp groan, and on looking round saw Methven white as a sheet, with his head buried in his hands.

"Good God, man, what's up?" cried Hornby.

"Oh, Jack," said Methven, "that's the very girl I loved myself. I met her last Christmas in the country, and I would have sold my very soul for her! And now," he continued, with a sob, "and now she's lost forever." With these words he walked out, leaving Hornby to ponder deeply on the strange irony of fate.

Two years have rolled on. Lillian West is now the wife of Henry Crofton, B. A., of Brazenface College, Oxford. And Methven has long since come to the conclusion that there are safer modes of playing practical jokes on one's friends than by inserting in the papers fictitious matrimonial advertisements.

Washing Made Easy

—BY USING—

W. S. DODGE'S

Borax and Ammonia Soap.

It will do all this Circular Recommends if Used According to the Directions.

A Few of Its Many Recommendations:

This preparation is harmless. It will not injure the skin of the most delicate fabric, and will work in hard or soft water.

THE COMBINATION.

First—It is the best combination in the market for soaking clothes. Tallow, Borax and Ammonia, the properties.

THE STAIN REMOVER.

Second—It will remove Stains, such as Fruit stains from Table Linen, Napkins, Bed Clothing, &c.

THE HOUSE CLEANER.

Third—For House Cleaning it has no equal. It will instantly remove dirt from paint without water, by applying a damp sponge or cloth, saving carpets and furniture from suds and slops.

THE LABOR SAVER.

Fourth—It saves one third of the rubbing required by other soaps. Washing can be done much quicker, and if you wish can wash without boiling your clothes, saving fuel and labor.

FLANNELS.

Fifth—Especially recommended for Flannels, saving fulling and shrinking.

THE CARPET CLEANER.

Sixth—Grease spots of any kind removed from carpets or furniture, clothing, &c., by using damp sponge and cold water. Colored goods washed with ease, and colors brightened by its use, such as Red Table Linen, Napkins, &c.

Seventh—These goods are used by some of the best Institutions and first-class families in the country.

LIVERY STABLES.

Eighth—Best thing for cleaning Carriages, removing grease from Hubs, and washing stains from White Horses.

KEEP IT IN A DAMP CELLAR.

DIRECTIONS.

FOR WASHING CLOTHES.—Dissolve the Soap with a little hot water, add water enough to cool it, for soaking clothes, use just enough to wet the clothes well. Let them soak but an hour, rub them in the same water, adding more soap to the soiled places if they need it. Rinse in two waters, and they are ready for the line.

TO REMOVE SPOTS, GREASE, &c., FROM WOOLEN GOODS.—Cover the spots with soap, rub it in, then wash off with cold water.

FOR CLEANING PAINT, JEWELRY, PLATE, &c.—Rub a sponge or cloth on the soap, and apply to the surface. Then rub with a damp cloth.

All Orders by Mail Promptly Attended To.

Cuticura

REMEDIES

THE GREAT SKIN CURES

The Only Remedies for the Skin and Blood Universally Commended.

Wm. T. Totten, 672 North Tenth street, Philadelphia, reports that one of his customers stated to him incidentally that he was feeling so well and had gained twenty-seven pounds in the last year, all of which he attributed to a systematic course of the Cuticura Resolvent, which has proved effectual when all other remedies failed.

SORES ON NECK.

Chas. Brady, Somerville, Mass., who refers to Dr. J. G. Wood, druggist, of that city, certifies to a wonderful cure of running sores on the neck which had been treated by hospital physicians without cure, and which yielded completely to the Cuticura Remedies.

CURED BY CUTICURA.

My skin disease, which resisted several popular remedies and other remedies advised by physicians, has been cured by your Cuticura Remedies. They surpassed my most sanguine expectations and rapidly effected a cure.

Vincennes, Ind. J. C. ARENTRUE.

KNOW ITS VALUE.

All of your Cuticura Remedies give very good satisfaction. The Cuticura I especially recommend for the diseases for which it is used. I know from experience its value.

DR. H. J. PRATT, Montello, Wis.

CUTICURA ABROAD.

Through a home-returned Norwegian, I have learned to know your Cuticura, which has in a short time cured one of an Eczema that my physician's medicines could not heal.

CHR. HELTZEN, Bergen, Norway, Agent for Cuticura.

THE POET POWERS.

A feeling of gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great merits of your Cuticura, and I cordially recommend it to the public as a very valuable remedy.
